CHEERFUL LETTERS TO THE SOLDIER BOYS

Hundreds of letters are going each week from Appomattox county to boys in the armed forces. Let us remind the "folks at home" to write CHEERFUL letters. We do not mean that "bad news" should be concealed, but we urge that you do not take your letters an endless story of sickness, petty misfortunes, and dissatisfaction. Don't upset the boys in camp with your troubles! When you write, tell them how all of us back home are proud of them; that the "home front" will do its part. And there is no use telling the cold, fact that his girl is going with a defense worker who is making 365 a week, or that the people in the neighborhood are complacent about the war. The services have a big part in keeping up morale!

A GOOD APPOINTMENT

Voters in the Southside Magisterial District of Appomattox County will welcome Judge Flood's appointment of George T. Abbitt, Jr. to fill the vacancy on the county board of supervisors caused by the death of Don Moses.

In addition to being an able attorney, Mr. Abbitt has the confidence of the people for his sound business judgment.

Appomattox citizens have come to take good administration of county affairs for granted.....a tribute to the character and ability of the men who discharge the functions of local office. However, it should be borne in mind that it is no easy matter to operate a county government. The responsibilities are great. The fact that Appomattox county is generally recognized as a conservative model in policy and administration, means that able men are in office, and that they have the confidence and respect of the citizens.

Too frequently in life we hasten to find fault when things are going wrong, but neglect to praise when things are going right! In pointing to the excellence of Judge Flood's appointment in this one office, let us take occasion to "view with pride" the general conduct of county government in Appomattox.

SCHOOL BUS REPORT

The recent report of the Division of Motor Vehicles, showing that a large number of Virginia school buses were unsafe, brings up a problem which cannot be solved now under war conditions, but which merits a place on the post-war agenda. With the manufacture of new busses and trucks scaled to a minimum for the duration of the war, you can't do much about getting new or better busses. However, when the war is over at long last, we are of the opinion that some uniform policy should be adopted in Virginia. Our own belief is that the policy of letting school bus routes to private contract must be abandoned. Under existing compensation, the private owners of school busses are doing about the best we have a right to expect. Few private owners make appreciable proffts hauling school children. By and large, if there is a fault and a danger in the present system, it is seldom the fault of the operators. They operate on a small margin.

We dislike to see the trend toward concentration of administration in the hands of the state accelerated, and believe that an intermediate step may be found in post-war owning and operation of school by counties, supplemented by state subsidies. A number of Virginia counties already own their own school busses.

The recent report, referred to above, declares that 31 per cent of the school busses in Virginia are "unsafe." That is alarming, to say the least.

HITLER'S ACHILLES HEEL

No estimate of the military situation can be accurate which fails to take into account the full effects of the British blocade of the European continent. Until June of last year the British blocade (the application of which did so much to win the First World War for the Allies) was reduced in effectiveness by Russia's economic cooperation with Hitler. By way of Vladivostok came cotton, rubber, copper and other goods. Russia herself made deliveries from her own stocks, including minor quantities of wheat, and between one and two million tons of oil annually. These deliveries were widely regarded at the time as being as large as the inefficient Soviet system of production could spare.

Since the invasion of Russia, the most important leak left in the blockade is the transit through Spain. Through this route comparatively huge shipments of cotton, lubricating oils and hides seem to have reached Germany. Obviously, no reliable statistics are available. Neither Hitler nor Franco is eager to make public the extent of their mutual business transactions.

Perhaps the most serious economic problem for the Nazis at present is neither oil nor metals but cotton and wool and especially leather for soles and for machine belts. Europe formerly produced by working up cowhides imported from overseas, mainly from British India and from the Argentine. The former European supply was not enough even for peacetime consumption. Today the reduction of livestock due to the deficiency of fodder (also formerly imported from abroad) has brought about a still greater shortage of hides. No satisfactory Ersatz as been developed for shoe leather. For machine belts textiles can be used; but textiles also are becoming very scarce in beleaguered Europe.

On the other hand, the war has multiplied a hundredfold the demand for heavy boots with strong soles. Some eight or ten million men who in peacetime wore light shoes with thin soles now need the heavy types of shoes and boots which under normal conditions are very rarely used. For maching and fighting forces the wear on shoe leather is extremely great. German embarrassment in Russia may principally be due to the lack of adequate footgear. No army can fight without suitable boots, above all in a Winter campaign in Russia and in the roadless, spongy swamps of its marshes. Many thousands of Nazi soldiers have certainly been disabled by the lack of suitable covering for their feet. An army's morale declines quickly when the men realize that the commissary cannot supply them with badly needed equipment. All this holds true, although to a lesser degree, of the shortage of wool and cotton. The Nazis are not only ill-shod but poorly clothed also.

This is a matter which the policy of the United States cannot afford to overlook. Shipments of raw hides and leather to and from Spain and to and from French Africa must be effectively prevented. The role played by leather in the conduct of the war must not be neglected.

From The New York Times.

OUR SACRIFICES

A recent letter addressed to the Memphis Commercial Appeal sets out most eloquently the feelings of a veteran of the First World War who has sent his son into the present struggle. It speaks for itself and is herewith republished:

"My only son was born while I was in France during the first World War. Today he is a member of the United States Marine Corps. He sailed from California the first of January, and we have heard nothing from him since. We know he is somewhere in the Pacific. We are anxious about him. Thousands of other parents are like us.

"The President says we do not have enough ships to send supplies to our troops, and that we must build ships in a hurry. Even as he spoke several hundred shipbuilders refused to work on Washington's birthday because they were not paid double time.

"How can fathers and mothers of boys who are in the danger zone and who are being called upon to sacrifice their lives feel any 'surge' of unity when the President and Congress permit a bunch of shipbuilders and munitions workers to quit when they get good and ready?

"Do our boys at the front get 'overtime' and 'double time' in the face holes of the machines? Do our sons who are giving their lives to protect the jobs of those and others like them quit on holidays? Like hell they do!

"One of my friends who is a good mechanic, with a family to support, went to get a job in a munitions factory. Every day we hear on the radio and read in the newspapers that such men are needed to turn out munitions for our soldiers, sailors and marines. But this man was refused a job until he could get a union card. He could not get a union card because he did not have enough money to buy one.

"Is it the idea of our Government that it is more important to preserve labor unions than it is to preserve the American Union? Why can't a freeborn American citizen get a job in a plant where the Government needs workers without having to pay tribute to a high-powered labor leader?

"If our sons are to be drafted to give their lives for their country, why should not labor and capital be drafted to supply them with munitions of war? Why should Congress which has the power to make laws, stand so tender of the regard for labor and management who won't and prosper in safety while having an utter disregard for the lives of the boys at the front?

"We don't like it, and we don't mind saying so right out loud. Maybe it is time we were electing some sensible senators and congressmen who will crack down and complel Capital and Labor to get into this war."

Plea For A Spiritual Re-awakening in America!

(NOTE: We received this week a copy of the weekly "Southside Virginia News," published at Petersburg, Va., featuring on its front page the following article, published as a communication signed by leading citizens of that area. We concur in the sentiment of the article and reprint it in the hope that it will find a responsive reaction among our readers. ..... THE EDITOR)

"We write at a time when all Americans are or should be striving by the utmost individual and cooperative effort, to preserve our democratic way of life and prevent our becoming slaves to enemies who would impose on us, and on the whole world, a kind of 'rule' that is abhorrent and shuddersome to think about. Not only the tremendous brute force but the unscrupulous craftiness of those enemies makes them dangerous and hard to combat.

"In the recent years, we in America pursued peaceful ways. With our great material, intellectual and spiritual resources, we diffused learning, developed the arts and sciences, created conveniences and luxuries, built beautiful homes, conquered diseases, and in some (though doubtless insufficient) measure extended our sympathy and service to those who were defective in body or mind or handicapped by circumstances. We engaged, we did not prepare for war; we did not want war, indeed we believed that for us there would be no war.

"But in some other places, leaders arose who stirred in their people the lust of conquest, holding out to them the promise of great riches to be gained by war. Exacting from all a huge toll of money, goods and labor, and ruthless with objectors, they built up enormous armies and armament, in violation or their pledged word, and set out to dominate the world by force.

"Other nations were caught unprepared. Disaster followed—greater disaster than any in history— disaster so great that its extent (much less its ultimate consequences) cannot be comprehended by the human mind. It obviously will be still greater before the designs of the dictators prevail, or are are thwarted.

"The disaster now has come to us. It will overwhelm us, as it has so many other nations, unless we make greater effort and more sacrifices than we have made before.

"For this effort and these sacrifices we need not only money—not only soldiers, ships, airplanes, tanks and guns. We need the will to win, the strength of spirit to make that will effective.

"At stake is our freedom and all that that entails. Our political freedom—the political rights stated in our Constitution; and our religious freedom—the privilege of worshiping God in the way we desire.

"Both will be lost if we lose this war.

"Strength of spirit, is particularly needed now. A spirit that will make our leaders able and unselfish; that will make our fighting men efficient and sustain them in victory or if they should fall; that will make all citizens willing and eager to serve and sacrifice, wherever they may live, whatever distance they may be from the fighting line, however great their individual, personal loss. The spirit that endureth all things for a laudable, desirable end, and cannot be conquered.

"Without that spirit we may lose; indeed, without it we probably will lose.

"Partly, we have that spirit now. We need it fully. It cannot be engendered by fear or weaponed on by avarice. It can come only to those who, in war, and in all phases of life, are sincere in purpose; who, even in wartime, believe in justice and mercy; who know that civilization (the slow, hard, painful rise of people from brutality to manhood) has developed on God-given principles, with God's help; who know that our Nation was founded on these principles and that God's help has even been available to those who tried to improve our Nation, or themselves, on God's pattern; who know that when the need is great, for a Nation or for a man, that help is abundant, adequate....if it is truly sought.

"Let us seek it, more earnestly than ever. All of us.

"Anyone can hear God's word anywhere, but one hears it plainest in the quiet and seclusion of a place of worship and with a group similarly seeking. Because this is true, we join in urging all who read this writing to be in some place of worship this week, and every week, and, in prayer, to find new strength of spirit for the ordeal that has but begun. 'Seek and ye shall find'.

"Finding spiritual strength, we will be better able to serve, anywhere, in this great war, and to keep on serving despite set-back, discouragement or grief; better prepared, also, for the tasks that will follow after— the job of rebuilding

The LETTER BOX

Los Angeles, California,
March 18, 1942.

Editor, Times-Virginian,
Appomattox, Va.

Dear Sir,

I received the name of your paper from the Los Angeles TIMES here, and although they said your paper was first published in 1892, I thought I would chance it and write anyway. What I want to know begins further back, and since you are in Virginia you know more about it than I do.

My great-grandfather was born January or June 16, 1800, in or near Appomattox C. H. His name was David Smithson. I don't know the names and births of his parents. I don't know if he had brothers or sisters, but more than likely he did have some whose descendants would know about David Smithson.

David Smithson ran away from home when the Williams family, Sarah and Isaac, and daughter, Betsy, started for Indiana. Betsy Williams was born February 23, 1813, in North Carolina.

David Smithson and Betsy Williams were married in Wayne Co., Indiana City, Ind., on October 6, 1826. Later they moved to Grant Co., and lived for years. They were noted for their activities during the Civil War.

It is just possible you or anyone else can inform me about the parents of David Smithson, and descendants of possible sisters and brothers. I would appreciate it very much.

Also, I would appreciate knowing who the parents of Sarah and Isaac Williams were, if that is possible.

Do you suppose anyone there knows when the parents of Sarah and Isaac Williams came to Appomattox from North Carolina.

Sincerely,
Mrs. James E. Harrison.

SPRING PLOWING

Liberty Chapel

Liberty Chapel, March 24.- This has been a fine day for the month of March. Nice for gardening. I am wondering how many "Victory Gardens" have been planted? Remember ..we are to produce the food to win the war, and write the peace, and it is high time to be getting busy.

Miss Rosa Martin, who has been ill, is much better.

The Liberty Chapel home demonstration club met in the home of Mrs. Judson Kinney on the 19th inst., with a good attendance.

Mrs. Emma Nowlin is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. N. Phelps.

Mrs. Mollie S. Garrette visited Mrs. L. J. Hatcher and Mrs. L. C. Hatcher last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Caldwell were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gunter last Sunday.

Miss Anna LeGrande and sisters also Mrs. Belle Payne, all of Lynchburg were recent guests of Miss Ida Jones in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. T. Childers.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Martin attended the funeral of Mr. Charles Ferguson near Lynchburg Tuesday.

Miss Alice Garrett returned to her home Monday after visiting friends in Harrisonburg and Madison College for the week-end.

Garland Garrett and several of his classmates accompanied Mr. Edmunds, their chemistry teacher, to Hampden-Sydney college Saturday, where they spent a most enjoyable day.

The W. M. U. of Liberty Chapel church met with Mrs. L. C. Hatcher last Wednesday.

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR

This, the highest decoration awarded by the U. S. Government, can be given to any officer or enlisted man of the United States Army who shall "in action involving actual conflict with an enemy distinguish himself conspicuously by his gallantry and intrepedity at the risk of his life, above and beyond the call to duty." It was first authorized by act of Congress in 1862, and presented "in the name of Congress"; hence the frequent allusion to it as the "Congressional Medal."

The present design was adopted in 1904. A bronze five-pointed star, surrounded by a laurel wreath on the reverse end, suspended by two links from a bronze bar bearing the inscription "Valor," and surmounted by an eagle. In the center of the star is the head of Minerva surrounded by the inscription "United States of America." Each ray of the star bears an oak leaf in green enamel. On the reverse of the medal is engraved the name of the recipient. It may be worn with a neck band. The ribbon is of light blue watered silk. Midway between the neckband and on the ribbon supporting the medal are 13 white stars arranged in the form of a triple chevron.
